By LAURA MANSKE @lauramanske

Frequent globetrotter Laura Manske has visited most U.S. states, explored 70+ countries, and cruised 60+ ships. She loves to explore the world, unearthing travel joy, beauty, adventure, and humor through her camera lens and articles. Now, she's sharing pictures and memories of her favorite spots on Parade.com.

Sunsets are a special joy of travel. Pausing to appreciate a fresh nightfall, the lovely transition from light to dark, we feel inspired, connected to a grander plan and our place in the universe. No two canvases look exactly the same. As the sun slides toward the horizon, painting a (free!) end-of-day show, sometimes the glow softens, gently spreading pearly pastels, like watercolors. Sublime coral. Satiny lavender. At other times, the fireball burns intensely, oscillating vivid shades, like Van Gogh oils. Shocking vermilion. Sizzling aureolin.

Here, seven favorite palettes I've photographed this year.

8. ISLE SMILES - SAINT LUCIA

Expansive sunset vistas exhilarate at St. James's Club Morgan Bay Resort in Saint Lucia, which boasts lushly landscaped hillsides and a sweeping beach. The turquoise sea sparkles. I've overheard guests swoon, "Wow, Mom, do you see that?!" and "Oh my, I'll never forget this sunset, Grandpa," and "Darling, only you are more beautiful than this!"

Where have you enjoyed your most beautiful sunsets? Please share your memories. We'd love to know! 12
